GOV. BRICKER'S CANDIDACY

Gov. Bricker's avowal of his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination next year is not startling news, because it had been anticipated. But the political effect is of first-rate importance.

The announcement gives formal, public approval to all who are interesting themselves in the governor's presidential possibilities. His campaign for the nomination now can proceed on a basis of fact, instead of assumption. His hat is in the ring.

Within the state, the announcement resolves a doubt about the governor's intention to leave the contest for the Republican governorship nomination next year. This will create goodwill for him within his party.

It is clear, especially in the light of Republican victories in Kentucky and New York last week, that the Republican presidential nomination in 1944 will not lack for candidates. The field will be large, and it promises to be active.

As Ohio's favorite son candidates, Gov. Bricker will be qualified by a record of administrative efficiency and the regard of a state which elected him to office three times—twice when the opposition party was carrying the state in a presidential election. Furthermore, in 1936, Mr. Bricker came within four percent of victory in his first race.

Ohioans can say without any reservation that their governor will make good in any job that puts a premium on down-to-earth administrative ability. If that is what Americans think they are going to need in the presidency, beginning in 1943, they had better keep their eye on John W. Bricker.

WHERE VICTORY COUNTS

The Anglo-American success in fighting submarines in the Atlantic is newly attested by a total of 130 sinkings—during the last six months. This is more than ship losses in the same area for the period.

This is victory where it counts. It is the same kind of an accomplishment scored by the Allied strategic air forces when an important percentage of German production capacity is destroyed on the spot. Unfortunately, the most important victories sometimes get less attention due to their nature than more dramatic actions of less real importance.

The submarine plainly was intended to be Germany's Sunday punch in World War II, even more than the blitzkrieg or the Luftwaffe, because unless submarines could blockade Great Britain and hold the United States at bay the last two could be stopped. Germany knew what Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt alone could understand at the beginning—that the crucial battles of the war would be fought on and over water. If its submarine fleet failed, the war was lost, regardless of its other successes, because then it could not hold what it had gained.

A rate of 25 submarine sinkings a month for six months signifies a defeat for Germany in World War II more disastrous than the rout in Russia, because it played an important part in producing the rout.

FRENCH POLITICIANS

If the reasons why Gen. Henri Giraud is not co-president any more of the French liberation committee, with Charles de Gaulle as president, seem complicated, it is well to remember that the reasons why he ever was co-president in the first place were complicated, too.

Before France was beaten to its knees by Germany in 1940, its politics qualified without competition as the most complicated on earth. Its party system and political personnel had been twisted, trimmed, distorted and redecorated until even Frenchmen were confused; outsiders simply refused to try to figure it out. The result was national confusion on most things and helplessness on the remainder. The nation was paralyzed by its own intrigues. Philadelphia lawyers and French politicians were cut out of the same cloth.

There have been no recent reports from Philadelphia, but the news from Algiers suggests the Frenchmen haven't improved any.

COST OF LIVING FIGURES

There never was a safer prediction than this: The five war labor board members investigating the cost of living index used as a basis for the "little steel" formula will bring in a report showing that the index needs to be revised, upward.

That is plainly the direction in which prices are going. It is plainly the direction in which the administration is going, all statements to the contrary notwithstanding. It is also the direction in which organized labor and organized farmers want to go.

The question is no longer which way, but how fast. The only dissenters to a policy of creeping inflation with "higher wages and higher prices for all" are the unorganized elements of the national population who, though they may constitute close to a majority of the population, have no voice in determination of national policy. Millions of them are being squeezed already between their stationary or receding incomes and the advancing cost of everything they need, and the fun has just begun. They could show the five WLB investigators some fun with figures that would open their eyes, but they don't expect to get the chance. No one is particularly interested in how they are meeting the rising cost of living with sacrifices, instead of more income. Sacrificing in wartime has become an old-fashioned virtue like Wednesday evening prayers.

Loss of a few thousand men in invading Japan would be insurance against the loss of millions in a next war. We'll be better friends afterwards. They'll respect us. They understand force—Lieut. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, Alaska chief.

For Saturday, November 13

THE MUTUAL and lunar aspects of the highly vibrating planets in our chain give impetus to the finer and most advanced experiences and ventures of life, on this day. This probably to the suppression of aims and objectives of a more material or realistic nature. Perhaps this is in connection with honors or preferment bestowed. Business in relation to such may have a surprising turn. But over all, glamor, and personality, secrets, intrigues, dominate the scene.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of much pleasurable attainment, in which the ideals, aspirations and most refined and advanced qualities hold sway over the sordid, realistic and commonplace. It seems a happy time for dedication to the pursuit of pleasure in its loftier expressions, with personality, romance, glamor, or spiritual forces over-shadowing affairs, even proving a determining factor in a surprising turn in a business venture. Withal there is a prelude of the fortunes being solidified by such idealistic methods.

A child born on this day, while possessing much creative talents, with originality and independence, yet may be highly idealistic, aspirational, intuitive and prophetic, with its pleasures and ambitions on a very high plane.

Axis solidarity never really existed. Every Italian was searched before attending so-called discussions, including myself—Marshal Pietro Badoglio of Italy.

Labor will do well to restore individual initiative and self-reliance and reverse the trend toward the standardization of human beings—Frederick C. Crawford, president National Association of Manufacturers.

I think we ought to be prepared to carry on the European war through 1944 regardless of any miracles that might happen meantime—Herbert Hoover.

Girls must be prepared for the fact that many men will return (from the war) physically handicapped. The girls to whom they return must be prepared to help them psychologically, and in many cases by sharing the responsibility for financing the home.—Camp Fire Girls National Council.

A decent attitude by our Allies toward us and our honest purposes following the last war, together with a just and honorable peace, might have found us in the League of Nations—Sen. Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota.

Doctor Advocates Military Training

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I HAVE been a violent anti-militarist (in other words, I think statesmen run us into wars on too slim pretenses), but I am convinced from some studies just made that universal military training would be a good thing. And I mean universal—girls as well as boys—and no excuses accepted except that of being actually bedridden.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

My reasons are found in the figures given in a study of 1,000 men students entering the University of Illinois. They show that:

13 per cent could not swim at all. 64 per cent were so weak they could not swim 50 yards.

3 per cent could not chin themselves once.

29 per cent could not chin themselves five times.

24 per cent could not jump an obstacle waist high.

41 per cent could not skin the cat.

These experiments were continued for several years and about the same results recorded every year.

Test of Fitness

A standardized test of physical fitness was then arranged by the physical director. It was simple enough for a person of the most average strength and endurance to pass, consisting of simple exercises such as lying on the back and lifting the legs 20 times. In September, 1942 (almost a year after Pearl Harbor), over 2,000 young men who had come from high schools were given these tests. Thirty-six per cent failed to pass the qualifications of the test. Twenty-three per cent were classified as fair. Only a little over 40 per cent passed the basic qualifications of the test satisfactorily.

This is shocking! It is worse, it is frightening! I am 60 years old and I think I could pass these tests. And here are young men. I suppose about 15 years old, who aren't physically able to fight the seven dwarfs. Think of a boy 15 who can't chin himself five times!

What is the matter with the high schools? One thing that I have been telling for years is that they take a few start pseudo-heros and make football immortals out of them. The athletic directors make more money out of a good football team than they do out of the herring business of taking a whole class out and creating a class of men of average motor fitness.

Is the average American youth the one we thought was a funny caricature—the pale youth with the cigarette drooping from one lip, hanging around the pool room corner? Is that fellow actually the average American youth? Is pool the only athletic game besides football that high school superintendents encourage?

I quote the Director of Physical Education of the University of Illinois: "Physical education and recreational features have been inadequate possibly because of inadequate time, facilities and leadership."

Time on whose part? Leadership on whose part? Facilities on whose part?

I never saw the athletic director or the superintendent of a high school (or a high school class) that didn't have enough time! All the facilities you need are a gymnasium or a front yard! And as for leadership, that is up to the superintendents to supply.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

B. C.—Which is more fattening—a piece of bread with butter or a glass of plain milk?

Answer: A glass of milk (5 ounces) with average cream content amounts to 100 calories. A fairly thick slice of white bread (1 1/4 ounces) amounts to 100 calories. How much extra calories you get out of the butter depends on how much you put on. A good serving of butter (1 1/2 pounces) amounts to 100 calories. I would guess your bread and butter would give you 125 calories.

W. W.—What is an ovarian cyst, how big does it get, and is surgery the only way of getting rid of it?

Answer: The cause of ovarian cyst is not known, but it is known that they get very large—big as a large watermelon. Surgery is the only method of removal, but it is one of the safest operations in surgery.

M. L.—Please tell me whether it is fact or superstition that it is harmful to sleep on the left side with the arms raised.

Answer: Superstition.

C. S. B.—What should be done for fingernails when they get sore around the corners and have pus in them?

Answer: It is probably fundamentally a ringworm infection. The application of Whitfield's ointment is indicated.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, 235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Universal Military Service Essential Policy, Says Knox

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The United States must institute universal military service as an "essential policy in the future," says Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox.

Speaking at the 75th anniversary meeting of the New York Athletic club last night, he declared:

"We must sacrifice one year of our life for the sake of our country. We must follow this absolute, vital, and essential policy in the future."

Knox also said America's North Atlantic communication lines are secure, adding: "The submarine is no longer a menace to the successful completion of our plans."

Asserting that Japanese advances in the Pacific had been halted, he said: "Our fleet in the Pacific is so powerful the Jap hasn't the courage to come out in the open to meet our challenge which we have been throwing into his teeth in the last 60 days."

ILLINOIS COLLEGE TEACHING THERAPY

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—The University of Illinois has established a four-year curriculum in occupational therapy, the first to be offered in Illinois during the war. Classes will begin in October.

Prof. James G. Van Derpool, head of the art department, said the objectives of occupational therapy are to restore the physically and mentally wounded both in military and civil life.

Students will spend their first five semesters on the university's campus at Urbana—Champaign. Eight departments there will contribute specially designed courses to the program.

Then the students will spend four semesters in the university's college of medicine in Chicago. During the first three years there will be devoted to clinical experience, and during the last semester full time.

Brothers To Drive Length of South American Continent

By EVERETT A. BAUMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent
BUENOS AIRES—An epic automobile trip from Cape Horn to Caracas—the length of the South American continent—will be undertaken in November by the four Mallo brothers, famous drivers who have already made world headlines with their drive from Buenos Aires to New York City in 1940-41.

The aim of the Mallos is to prove to the world that automobile traffic from one end of the South American continent to the other is now practicable. Starting out from wind-swept Tierra del Fuego, the four brothers will guide their 1940 two-door Plymouth over the barren Patagonian deserts north to Buenos Aires, and thence by an excellent highway across Argentina and the Andes to Santiago, Chile. Reclimbing the Andes, they will go next to La Paz, Bolivia, and then to Lima, Peru, one of the toughest legs of their trip. From Lima they continue due north to Bogotá, and then west by a new road linking the Colombian capital with Caracas.

To Take Trailer

On the northward trip the four brothers will take a trailer, which will be left behind, however, on the return trip, when the Mallos hope to turn up the amazing record of only 300 hours over 11,150 kilometers of mountain and desert lying between Caracas and Buenos Aires. The 300 hours, they explain, will be time spent in driving, not the total length of their trip.

Permits for special gasoline allowances in the countries through which they will travel are being secured for the Mallos by the La Plata Cultural and Sports Institute, which is sponsoring the trip. By use of a special "tourist carnet," issued by the Argentine Automobile club, the four brothers also hope that it will be possible to reduce frontier and customs formalities to a minimum.

They expect to reach Caracas some time in January and set out on their return trip in February.

None of the Mallo brothers is a professional mechanic. Three are merchants, and the fourth a newspaperman, in their native city of La Plata. Since youth, however, they have been intensely interested in automobiles and devoted their spare time to a study of engines. Today all four are experts in automobile repairs.

Unknown In 1937

They were unknown in the local automobile world when they began their famous drive to New York, for the first time, in 1937. This attempt met with disaster in the Peruvian mountains. A road all the way from La Paz northward to Lima was non-existent at that time. To ford treacherous mountain streams, the brothers had to recruit as many as 400 Indians from neighboring tribes. They scaled road-less mountain ridges by literally pushing their car over the top. The brothers got across the Andes, but their car was a wreck, and they returned to Buenos Aires.

In October, 1940, the brothers set out again, this time with more luck. Seven months and 19 days later they were driving down New York's Fifth ave. With the exception of the stretch on the Panamanian peninsula north to Cristobal—impassable jungle country—the brothers made the entire trip overland. Leaving New York on July 29, 1941, they were back in Buenos Aires on Nov. 15th of the same year.

In 1941, the Argentine Automobile Club announced that a Grand Prize of South America race would be held between Buenos Aires and Caracas. The feat had to be postponed, however, because of the Peruvian-Ecuadorian border incident and the outbreak of the war with Japan. There was great public disappointment because the trial could not be effected, for it was felt that the race might stimulate a flood of inter-American tourism. Test of the continent-long road-way, however, will now be made by the Mallo brothers.

WASHINGTON — Charred oak whiskey barrels, whose former contents perhaps inspired close harmony with "Show Me the Way to Go Home," will be doing just that soon for towboats plying the Mississippi river between St. Louis and Cairo, Ill. About 70 casks now are being converted into channel-marking buoys by the Coast Guard as a first step in an inclusive program to save steel by substituting the barrels for metal drums.

Although other types of tight-coopered used barrels also will be utilized in making buoys, the whiskey barrels will probably be in the majority. Coast Guard officials explained, since distillers can use them only once.

One of the new-type barrel buoys already is in use marking the Mississippi river channel in the fast water at Chain of Rocks, opposite North St. Louis. Under trying conditions it is meeting all expectations, Lt. Cmdr. R. M. Freeman, aid to navigation officer, said, but the final test will be made by placing the new buoys on the river from St. Louis to Cairo.

Several Advantages
Not only will these barrels effect a great saving of steel and production cost, but preliminary tests showed they have a number of definite advantages over the metal buoys.

Barrel buoys can be seen by pilots more than twice as far away as the metal ones, said R. R. Kirsch, research engineer at Coast Guard district headquarters, St. Louis, who developed the idea. "The barrels, ballasted by concrete and with metal cones or cans as markers fitted to their tops, were anchored in the same manner as the metal drums, but their action in the water is exactly opposite. Instead of inclining downstream they lean upstream, causing a lifting action against the current that carries them higher out of the water.

"The barrels should prove equally as durable as metal drums, having great resistance to outside pressure because of the arch construction of the staves and the wood's resiliency in warding off impact from boats or driftwood.

"These new buoys will have the further advantage of ease in handling and storage on Coast Guard buoy tenders. Three barrels can be stacked in the space of one metal buoy. The metal tops, which are interchangeable, can be nested until ready for use. They will also eliminate the necessity of carrying two separate types of buoys for marking the right and left sides of the channel."

Cycling Irish Hit

DUBLIN—Nowadays, the quickest way to an Irish girl's heart is not via a pair of silk stockings, but via a set of cycle tires and tubes, or even one tire.

Rubber shortage has driven most of the tires into the Irish black market. Cycle dealers are supposed

War Worker Does Two Shifts a Day, Seven Days a Week

(By United Press)
PORTLAND, Ore.—Seven straight 16-hour shifts for a total of 112 hours in one work week is the amazing record set at the Vancouver, Wash., plant of the Aluminum Company of America by Robert Norvell, Alcoa pot tender.

This one-man attempt to solve the manpower shortage equals the nation-wide record for aluminum reduction plants, established in September, 1942, by Gus Sellberg, also a pot tender at the Vancouver plant.

Norvell's terrific double-duty schedule resulted in production of enough aluminum to build nine of the most modern fighter planes, but he doesn't stop there. David H. Beeten, reduction plant superintendent, reports that Norvell also does twice his part toward helping to pay for the planes he's so busy helping to build. For Norvell allocates more than 20 per cent of his average weekly pay check to the purchase of war bonds.

Norvell comes from the "show me" state of Missouri, but he has done a bit of showing himself since he came to Washington. His fellow workers all know he is ready to do his part on the production front. Company records reveal that he never has taken a day off, but instead has worked seven days each week since being employed and on one occasion worked 24 consecutive hours to help meet an acute labor shortage.

Furthermore, believe it or not, the Missourian has gained over pounds since he started to work for Alcoa.

Offers Solution To Management-Union Problem In Nation

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, Nov. 12.—G. F. Mugridge of Cincinnati, labor relations expert for the Kroger Grocery & Baking Co., asserted today the time had come for "American management to take the first step in solving the management-union problem."

"Management's record with labor is a great credit," he said, "but opposition to labor's pursuits," Mugridge said in an address prepared for a labor relations forum at the 10th annual convention of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce.

"As management we must immediately resolve to explore the techniques of collective bargaining, to formulate educational programs, to aid funds and time for research work in industrial relations under organized labor, and to study the true objectives of unions."

"We must conduct our relationship with unions so that opportunities are created for the rise of able union leadership," Mugridge said. He opened the first convention meeting ever sponsored by the chamber for representatives of both management and labor.

Other scheduled speakers were Phil Jannah, secretary-treasurer of the Ohio Federation of Labor; Ted F. Slag, secretary-treasurer of the Ohio CIO council, and Ralph P. Ward, director of the chamber's industrial relations.

"These of us—and there are some who are planning to dis-associate themselves from union contracts after the war are inviting chaos," Mugridge declared.

"Unless we come to take union security for granted and stop thinking of it as an emergency and a general movement the end of the war will open up an era of bitter union-management battles."

"Such an event may readily create a permanent governmental triangular with power to enforce compulsory awards and decisions. Such a measure would accelerate the present tendency to destroy free enterprise by placing in the hands of government the responsibility for deciding wages, working conditions and profits."

New directors elected at a business session included Louis Bronfield, Mansfield farmer-author; F. E. Henry, Jr., of Alliance, and Gilbert O. Hille of Chillicothe.

Washington Round-up

News and Views, Briefly On What's Going On In Capital

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—A majority of the War Labor board believes the agency is rocking on its heels from the coal dispute and that it could stand a shot in the arm and a new set of biting teeth.

Four industry members have said as much in a message to Congress urging amendments to the War Disputes act. And three public members, in their opinion on the agreement made by Interior Secretary Ickes and Mine Workers Chief John L. Lewis, saw the possibility of unsolved issues reviving the controversy. The industry members' message to Congress asserted unless organized labor will take the "bitter with the sweet" from now on, more thorough-going legislative sanctions will be needed.

A $65 QUESTION

State Secretary Hull hadn't any more than ducked away from the prop wash of the plane that brought him back to Washington than the senate sought his advice. Two senators—Gillette (D-Iowa) and Taft (R-Ohio) are sponsors of a resolution urging immediate relief to starving Europeans. They're going to talk to Hull next week to get his views on whether the military liabilities of such a plan outweigh the humanitarian aspects.

KEEP TALKING

Congress received the British report on reciprocal aid with applause but some senators feel there is more to be said—and done. There are demands for fuller information about the extent to which Allied resources might be tapped to repay American aid. The report is "interesting," says Senator Brooks (R-Ill) but he urges that the United States not lose its present chance to obtain future rights to airports, radio and communication facilities it has built up throughout the world.

Hits Non-Residents

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 12.—Non-residents of Pennsylvania will not be able to obtain whiskey at Pennsylvania state liquor stores when formal rationing begins for a six-week trial period on Monday, the state liquor control board said today.

The board said store employees will confine sales to persons producing Ration Book 3 showing Pennsylvania addresses.

Wounded Soldier Home

EAST LIVERPOOL, Nov. 12.—Sergeant Lester Trainer, Jr., 21, who was wounded in action in Italy, has arrived at an army hospital at Staten Island for treatment. His father, Lester Trainer, was advised.

Kibler-Readshaw Wedding Is Held

LEETONIA, Nov. 12.—Miss Virginia Kibler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kibler, Leetonia-Lisbon road, and Flight Officer William Readshaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Readshaw of Canfield, were united in marriage at 8 p. m. Wednesday at the First Methodist church with the pastor, Rev. C. Snowball performing the ceremony.

Miss Lanoma Zimmerman of Columbiana was maid of honor and Harold Firestone of Columbiana was best man. Lieut. Wayne C. Shive and John Doudd of Columbiana were the ushers.

The bride was lovely in a street length dress of deep rose, with black accessories. She carried a white Bible with spray of gardenias. Miss Zimmerman wore a street length dress of pale blue with black accessories. Her corsage was of roses and gardenias. Theatre Attractions

Susan Peters and Richard Carlson in a scene from riotous M-G-M comedy of two helpful children who try to ruin romance in "Young Ideas"

Things really happen when Susan Peters and Elliott Reid set about breaking up a marriage they didn't approve. It occurs in "Young Ideas," a romantic comedy showing tonight and Saturday at the State theater. Mary Astor, their mother, marries Herbert Marshall, a chemistry professor. The youngsters start plotting and hilarious complications result, culminating in the staid professor casting aside his dignity to perform in a jitterbug contest at a nearby night club. A romance also is carried on by Miss Peters and Richard Carlson.

An added attraction, "Women At War," starring Faye Emerson and Robert Warwick, also shows.

Historic battles between frontier ranchers and crooked land operators of the old West provide drama in "Red River Robin Hood," starring Tim Holt and showing at the Grand tonight and Saturday, along with "Adventures of the Flying Cadets."

REPUBLICANS PLAN CHICAGO MEETING

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Republican leaders will meet in Chicago Jan. 10 and 11 to select a date and place for the 1944 national convention which the GOP hopes will be the springboard for a return to national political power.

Chairman Harrison E. Spangler today issued a call for the meeting to be held at the Stevens hotel. The 106 national committee members and 96 state chairmen and vice chairmen were invited.

Spangler has been meeting state chairmen in regional groups on swings about the country. The Democrats also are expected to meet in January to arrange for their convention. Both parties in the past have held these site-selecting conferences in Washington, but Spangler said transportation difficulties dictated the choice of a centrally-located city.

For similar reasons, both parties have been urged by Defense Transportation Director Joseph B. Eastman to hold their conventions in Chicago.

Philadelphia has entered a tentative bid of $100,000 for the Democratic conclave.

CLEVELAND BLAZE PROBELAUNCHED

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, Nov. 12.—Government agents and city police began an investigation today of the fire which destroyed the Warren Refining & Chemical Co. plant, killing four women employees and injuring 17 other persons.

Second Assistant Fire Chief Joseph F. Sweeney said reports indicated four women employees were unable to escape when the blaze swept the four-story brick building shortly before noon yesterday and caused damage which he estimated at $20,000.

Listed as missing were: Mrs. Mamie Schultz, wife of a Cleveland detective; Mrs. Theresa Pensiero of Lakewood; Irma Balfour, former resident of Steubenville; and Agnes Rundt of East Cleveland.

Firemen said evidence pointed to spontaneous combustion as the cause. Henry Holan, a shipping department employee, was one of the first to see the flames as they burst forth in the mixing department on the second floor. He said the fire apparently started spontaneously in a drum of highly volatile material. Explosions evidently occurred when flames reached inflammable materials used to process or manufacture oils, lubricants, floor waxes, polishes and varnishes.

Firemen from 23 of the city's 40 companies rushed to the scene but were helpless because of the chemical nature of the blaze. The building collapsed an hour after the fire started.

Firemen used axes and bars to demolish a ventilating fan at ground level and dragged 13 men and women to safety. The four women listed as missing had been working on the top floor of the structure when the fire broke out.

Employees on the Erie railroad, which runs on the south side of the plant, said they saw a man and a woman screaming at windows on the upper floor. Climbing on a box car, they assisted the man to safety, but reported the woman had fallen back into the flames before they could reach her. Other workers formed a human chain in groping their way through dense smoke down a stairway to the basement and safety through windows smashed by firemen.

Numbers Syndicate Quits, But Bingo Games Flourish

EAST LIVERPOOL, Nov. 12.—

Whether a truce of a surrender has or has not been determined, the stock market "numbers" racket lid was glamped down tight here today after a police order to "quit" was obeyed Wednesday by agents of a Steubenville syndicate which operates in the upper Ohio valley.

Meanwhile, bingo games, which attract a bigger play than the numbers, operated with immunity because the state law does not bar it when the proceeds are for charitable or religious purposes. At least eight bingo parlors, one of which draws as many as 1,400 players on Monday night, are flourishing here.

The admiral is conservative. For months he sat silently in his office overlooking Pearl Harbor and its evidence of growing fleet strength while high officials in Washington issued optimistic statements after statement—and only diversionary nuisance raids were carried out in the central Pacific.

Sees Victory Ahead

If ever he was tempted to join such statements the admiral opened the center drawer of his desk to a sheaf of pictures—pictures of battlehips lying on their sides in Pearl Harbor, battleships with great bomb and torpedo holes in their hulls and decks—pictures of the wreckage of Dec. 7.

Then he silently returned the pictures, closed the desk and awaited the day he would have a great fleet. That he now believes he has such a fleet is clearly evidenced in this bold declaration of a conservative man:

"Our time has come to attack. We feel that victory is sure."

Water plays a large part in the regulation of body temperature through evaporation from the surface of the body.

NEW TAX BILL

3. It would raise the excess profits tax on corporations and readjust the method of computing excess profits.

4. It would add $140,000,000 by disallowing as deductions in personal income tax returns sums paid on excises, such as gasoline, cigarette and liquor taxes.

5. The law governing renegotiation of war contracts for recovery of excessive profits would be revised drastically. The committee provided that contractors dissatisfied with excess profits findings of government renegotiation boards have the right of appeal to the tax court of the United States.

Pony Killed By Car

State highway patrolmen reported that a car operated by Willard Lee Hillier, 20, of Kensington, struck and killed a pony owned by Ruth Polinori of Alliance, on Route 89 at the junction of Route 153, at 4:15 a. m. today.

The animal apparently had broken through a fence and strayed onto the road from a nearby field. No one in the car was injured in the mishap.

like a good idea for a foreign minister, or other members of cabinet, to appear before parliament and talk direct to the members. Do I hear someone saying "that gallant American eagle," Mr. Cordell Hull?

Robert Morrison, member of the British house of commons, suggested that a reward be offered by the Allies for the capture or "destruction" of Nazi leaders. The foreign office replied that Allied plans now being worked out will make such a reward unnecessary.

Impression: That "last mile" is the toughest, Herr Hitler. Come to think it over, it's also the toughest for the executioners, as we saw when they balked at "hanging the Kaiser" after the last war.

American and British bombers yesterday made heavy attacks on Brenner pass and Mont Cenis tunnel.

Impression: These are Nazi bottle-necks into northern Italy. They're at once the gates for supplies and reinforcements into Italy, and the mountain gateways for escape of Hitler's forces from the peninsula. Cork up these bottle-necks and Marshal Rommel's expeditionary force in Italy will be in a nasty position.

Reconnaissance also brought evidence they had carried out new demolitions at Leghorn, sinking two more ships in Leghorn harbor. The Germans apparently had decided to disperse with the use of Leghorn even for coastal shipping and sealed the harbor to impede any Allied raids or coast-hopping landings.

There also was widespread Allied air activity over the front and behind the lines.

American invaders blew up an ammunition dump, attacked a bridge, strafed a locomotive and destroyed four trucks near Cassino, eight miles beyond Mignano. Warhawks attacked several strong points. Boston and Baltimore blew up a chemical works at Buss, 23 miles northeast of Avezzano.

communications began Wednesday with a daylight attack by Mediterranean-based Flying Fortresses on Bolzano, on the Italian end of the rail line through the pass. That night the RAF blasted Mondane, at the French end of the Mt. Cenis railway tunnel from Italy.

Dispatches from Spain said some German civilian trains had been stalled in their stations for two days. The Swiss radio asserted Mondane was in smoking ruins.

Britain-based Mosquitos also attacked Berlin, Hannover and the Ruhr, in one of their biggest operations, the air ministry said. Airfield and railway targets in France and the low countries were attacked by intruder patrols and mines were laid in enemy waters.

In the night's operations seven bombers and a fighter were lost, the air ministry said.

and flaws in the prosecution's evidence.

At 7:15 p. m. the jury filed back into the room. Nearly five minutes passed before the courtroom could be quieted for Foreman James Sands to announce the verdict.

"Not guilty, 9 to 3," said Sands, and his further words were drowned by a roar.

DeMarigny made straight for his wife and they embraced. No one was permitted to leave the courtroom until Nancy and her husband had gone outside to where DeMarigny's big automobile had been waiting throughout the jury's deliberation.

Only then could Sands finish: "Not guilty, 9 to 3, but with a unanimous vote for immediate deportation."

Legal Fight Seen

The chief justice said he could only pass the recommendation along to authorities. Attorneys privately commented there is no legal basis for deportation.

DeMarigny was heard to remark, as he entered the courtroom to hear the verdict:

"This judge is a fair man."

The justice was particularly critical of fingerprint evidence introduced by Capt. James O. Barker of the Miami police, an American detective called in by the Duke of Windsor, governor of Bahamas, to help solve the slaying.

Barker said he found the print—an impression of DeMarigny's right little finger—on a bedspread in the death room, but Sir Oscar made it clear he did not consider the evidence proper.

off Bougainville the night of Nov. 1-2 are without any basis whatsoever," General MacArthur's spokesman said.

The Nov. 1-2 battle was the one in which American warships, intercepting an enemy task force of 18 ships, sank a cruiser and four destroyers and damaged two cruisers and two destroyers.

Admiral Halsey's spokesman declared the Japanese had not sunk a single Allied warship since the United States destroyer Chevalier went down Oct. 6.

Even in the Chevalier's case, the Japanese claim was clouded. For that destroyer sustained only damage during a battle in the Yellow Gulf which resulted in the sinking of a Japanese cruiser and two destroyers and the damaging of two other destroyers. Later the Chevalier collided with another American destroyer and was cut in two.

On Bougainville, the Marines and Army reinforcements now have established a solid six-mile-long position and at Choiseul, where Marines landed Oct. 27 to drive the Japanese from the impending thrust at Empress Augusta, the American forces have withdrawn their mission completed.

Today's communique reported a 22-ton bombing raid by Liberators on the naval base of Soroban, Java; the sinking of an enemy destroyer off Kavieng, New Ireland; and a possible torpedo hit on a cruiser by planes raiding Rabaul.

Soldier and Grieving Dog Reunited After 1,300-Mile Journey

(By Associated Press)
 ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 12.—Four months of grieving ended today for Pal, 17-year-old airedale-shepherd, when the dog was reunited with its weeping soldier master.
 Special Technical Franklin E. Higgins went immediately to his pet upon arriving in Albany after a 1,300-mile train trip from Camp Crowder, Mo.
 The soldier, granted a special furlough on the request of the Red Cross when Pal suffered a stroke Saturday, burst into tears as he picked up and clung to the crying animal. Pal, recognizing him, licked the master's face.
 The shaggy black and tan animal which has been dying of grief since the induction of its 22-year-old constant companion, took nourishment and managed a few feeble steps yesterday for the first time since Saturday—almost as if realizing its master was rushing to its side.
 Mrs. Frank A. Higgins, the soldier's mother, said there is no hope for Pal, but added the reunion will gladden the dog's last hours.

Fashion Experts Advise Women To Buy Rayons Wisely

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Fashion Editor

YOU, Mrs. Consumer, have an important job to do in the total defense of democracy. In order to conserve your country's resources you must learn to buy carefully and take care of what you have.

The necessities of wartime have opened up a whole new world of unfamiliar foods, fabrics and equipment for you to master. To qualify as a home-front soldier you must know them well, recognize their several characteristics, learn to distinguish the good from the bad.

Important in the new lineup of clothing fabrics are the many varieties of rayons which now are pinching manfully for silk, cotton and wool. These are not substitutes, but new products of a new era, in many cases, proving more satisfactory than the materials they replace.

When you go shopping for a rayon garment the first thing you want to know is—"Will it wear?" Your best guide in this is the label, which should tell you: a—Will the fabric sag, stretch or shrink? b—Will it fade from sunlight, perspiration, washing or cleaning? c—Is it strong enough for the use to which it will be put? d—Will it wash? e—Will it dry-clean?

Modern trade practices provide detailed information labels which should give all these answers to your fabric questions.

If you are satisfied as to the fabric of the garment, you should look next for good workmanship. This means well-finished seams, simple hems, well-made buttonholes, good basic lines and generous seam allowances.

Next, be sure that you get the correct size. A dress that is too tight is a poor buy because it will strain at the seams and will neither wear nor look well. If you are an "in-between" size, buy the larger size and have it altered where necessary.

Last, take care in selecting becoming styles and colors. If the dress isn't becoming, you won't want to wear it, and it will become just another wardrobe slacker. If you are tall and thin, select styles with horizontal lines, shoulder yokes, contrasting jackets, peplum effects or wide revers which tend to shorten and broaden the figure. If you are stout, select styles that add to your height, such as high-waisted skirts, princess cut, simple styles, vertical lines.

This winter you will see rayon flanne's, gabardines, jerseys, covers, tweeds, wools and whorls, as well as the more familiar crepes, failles, taffetas and velvets. You will see rayons which look like wool, like silk, like cotton.

You will see rayon which will serve you well if you follow these simple rules of care:

1—Protect garments with dress shields.

2—Hang properly, air frequently, don't overcrowd in closet.

3—If the label tells you the fabric is washable, follow directions carefully. Wash in lukewarm water, use mild soap, rinse well, and dry slowly, away from direct sunlight or heated radiators.

4—Press carefully, being sure iron is not too hot. Always steam-press, placing a heavy, dry cloth next to the fabric and covering with a damp cloth.

5—If garment is dry-cleanable, send the fabric label to your cleaner, so he may handle the fabric properly in cleaning.

Leaves and cut grass, allowed to rot during the winter, may be used as fertilizer for spring gardens.

Engineers Build Air Strips In Jungle In Record Time

By ROBERT EUNSON
AN ADVANCE NEW GUINEA BASE, Nov. 12—If you had asked an engineer before the war to build a 5,000-foot air strip in two days he would have laughed in your face.

But air borne American engineers unloaded 5,000 pounds from each of their C-47 troop carrier planes in seven minutes at Esili Tsili, built a mile-long airstrip in 46 hours, and took pot shots at Japanese bombers on the side.

They followed the paratroopers into Nadzab one day and, before the sun set, had mowed the Kunai grass, smoothed the runways and were building revetments, all with their specially-made machinery.

One observer watching them at work at Nadzab commented, "the C-47, the jeep and the bulldozer—three things the Japs don't have—are winning the war in the Pacific."

In the unit that created this fighter strip at the junction of Duntung creek and Watum river was Lieut. Col. Harry G. Woodbury of East Providence, R. I., who is called "the heart and soul of the airborne engineers."

This 27-year-old civil engineer wrote the book on the organization of the airborne engineers, went to the factory to help design equipment and, after training with them at Westover field, Mass., came to New Guinea where he is building airstrips right under the noses of the Japanese.

Half of the men trained at Westover field came to New Guinea. The rest went to Africa and now are operating in southern Europe.

After machete-wielding natives had mowed down the grass on a level strip long enough for a fighter to land, the engineers landed equipment like this from their troop carrier planes:

Six hundred pound mowing machines, 3,000 pound tractors, 4,200 pound tractors, scrapers big enough to move a yard and a half of dirt, 3,000 pound graders, asphalt kettles, paving breakers for stumps, compressors to run jack hammers, and rollers.

An anti-aircraft unit, which doubled in engineering and taking pot shots at Japanese airplanes, set up its guns as soon as the equipment was unloaded. The rest of the crew dug foxholes.

Before the last carrier plane left, jeeps were pulling mowing machines through grass higher than any piece of equipment on the job. Bulldozers went to work on a hump in the middle of the number one strip. Scrapers and rollers followed the mowers.

The next day loaders at an advanced base cut a two and a half-ton truck in half and shoved it into a C-47. At Tsili Tsili the two halves were welded together again.

The crack crew of enlisted men who were among the first to land

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Yes, I'm afraid there's no denyin' it, Judge... jeeps and trucks and other kinds of motorized equipment have taken the place of the good old horse in modern warfare."

"It's true of lots of things in this war, Eben. Every day we hear of new tactics and requirements and new uses of products. For instance, take the alcohol that is used for war purposes. In World War 1, this vitally needed product was used mostly in making smokeless powder, chemical warfare materials and medical supplies. Today it must do far more... it must provide the base for such indispensable products as synthetic rubber, shatterproof glass, lacquers, plastics and many other of our requirements so essential to victory.

"As a result hundreds of millions of gallons are required every year... half of which is being produced by the beverage distilling industry. Bet you didn't know that, Eben."

"As a matter of fact, I didn't, Judge. That's a mighty important war contribution that had escaped me completely."

LILIAN LAUFERTY

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

For a split second her eyes challenged mine, and Peggy's avoided them.

"It's Greg of course."

Pam's voice and my heart had spoken together.

Greg was going to marry Pam. This was the end of all my dreams. Suddenly the memory of my moment with Greg at midnight came flooding over me. I wondered whether Pam would be announcing her engagement today if that moment had lasted long enough to carry me into the darkness of Nancy's house.

Greg was going to marry Pam. I mustn't think what it meant to me. I must find something to say to her.

Dennis spoke for me. "This sure is news, but you know, Hilly, you win your bet. Our clever Miss Glenn offered me ten to one this was an engagement party. She said she had caught up with Greg this time. Here's your ten-spot, Hilly, and here's three cheers, Pam! Greg's a lucky dog and so am I!"

"Where do you come in on the luck?" Pam asked.

"Why, Pamela, doesn't this give me my chance to kiss the bride?"

But before he carried out his declared intention, Dennis crumpled the ten-dollar bill into my hand and his hand into his, and swung them high and wide in a gesture that said: "Hurray!"

Peggy relaxed. Crick chuckled. They began saying the right things to Pam. My bad moment was over. Greg should have armed me for this, I thought.

But Greg had left me vulnerable and Dennis had armed me.

During that split second when Peggy's eyes were full of angry pity and Pam's of triumph spiced with malice, I had thought my world was shattered at my feet. It was. Then suddenly I knew I was glad. It had been on old world, a secondhand one. I wanted a new world and Dennis had begun to build it for me.

"It's my turn to kiss the bride," I said.

Pam stared at me. I kissed her on both cool cheeks. "This is wonderful even if it isn't news," I said. "You two are so absolutely suited to each other."

"When did all this happen?" Crick asked. That's one of the conventional questions that practically asks itself.

"Yesterday. I've kept my secret almost twenty-four hours," Pam said.

Yesterday! And last night at midnight Greg had offered me a shoddy, second-best love!

For a moment, I found myself wondering if Pam actually thought Greg was in New York and whether he had come to Havenhurst last night without letting her know.

Hilda quit thinking like a policeman. Forget the Everard case for one day, I admonished myself without knowing why.

All that was left of Greg's importance to me now was for Dennis to know Greg wasn't important. And Pam gave me my chance.

"I hope you're not all too famished," she said. "Lunch may be frightfully late, but I'm terribly anxious to wait for my man. And Greg's worth waiting for, isn't he, Hilda?"

"I used to think so," I said and smiled straight at Dennis.

"And now?" Pam asked maliciously. "Since when have you stopped thinking so well of Greg?"

I managed to laugh lightly. "Oh, it's his sense of timing. When I took Love's Wages to Greg he promised to read it at once; he took a couple of months instead. That chilled my ardor."

Everyone joined in the laugh except Pam and she grinned.

"You wouldn't hold lunch back so long it turned into tea, would you, lady?" Crick asked plaintively. "I'm a director so I too have a sense of timing. And it tells me breakfast was many long hours ago."

Pam conceded a point. "I guess Greg won't mind if we start our Henny and nobody's going to stop me."

I stopped her with hands whose strength astonished me. They took her by the shoulders and pushed her back into the swing. "Don't you try to move from this porch!" I snapped in a voice I'd never heard till then.

Pam crumpled down in the swing, whimpering to herself. "She can't be dead. She's my baby. Hilly, do something, will you? Do something!" Then suddenly, she began to denounce Havenhurst, the world, and life itself.

"Call Chief Calvin and Jack Drimmond, too," I told Peggy curtly.

For the first time my sister obeyed an order of mine without questioning.

I sat down and put my arms around Pam. But I could not quiet her. She fought and screamed and her nails clawed long, raking scratches on my hands. After a few minutes Peggy came out through the screen door again. "Jack's house doesn't answer. That's funny. He phoned me at nine."

Toya crouched against the railing. "Mr. Drum' go way. Go Vermont he say. Toya see him station when go meet Miss Pam."

"What time was that?" Peggy asked.

"Leven 'clock. Maybe little 'fore 'leven."

"So he ran away too," Peggy said in a tight little voice.

Now Pam began to sob violently. "My poor baby! She's been in the water too long. That's why she's cold. She must have hit her head. I've got to know. Why don't they bring her to me? Hilly—go tell them to hurry! Go, will you or shall I?"

One doesn't argue with hysterics. "Watch her, Peggy," I said and raced to the beach. As I went, Roney Hodges' car roared up to the cottage, he got out, and padded along at by side questioning me breathlessly.

I don't know what I answered. I don't know when Dr. Rogers arrived. I can't recall when the chief of police appeared with Dr. Jenkins, the state medical examiner. But I shall never forget what I saw when Roney and I rounded the big rock.

Henny's nude body lay sprawled on the sand; her arms and legs twisted, her lips bruised and purple, her forehead gory. They never let Pam see her child again. I didn't need Sergeant O'Toole to tell me: "Faith and begorra, 'tis his plain signature the killer was after leaving this time. As if he was laughing at us for stupid fools that wouldn't be knowing how to read it."

This time the police had to act. They arrested Toya.

Denies Government Censors Radio; Says Public Opinion Acts

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—James L. Fly, chairman of the Federal Communications commission, said today he looked to "recent public opinion," not government censorship, to drive "cheap and trashy programs" off radio networks.

Fly reiterated previous statements that the Columbia broadcasting system and the National Broadcasting company had raised a "fantastic" cry of threatened FCC censorship of radio programs when they knew the commission had no such thoughts in mind.

"The big networks," he declared, "are trying to move back into their old monopolistic control over the radio under the guise of threatened censorship by the commission."

Fly said he had no intention of defining the FCC's powers to regulate the industry. Fly attacked what he said was an assertion by William S. Paley, CBS president, that the commission could use the "raised eyebrow" to change the contents of a program.

Commenting that he often had expressed his personal aversion to the "soap operas" and other programs that "fill the long daytime hours with highly emotional, cheap forms of droolery," Fly said:

"Talk about moving them off with a raised eyebrow—why, you couldn't move them with a crowbar."

Lady Marines Learn Jap Ju-Jitsu In Training

PHILADELPHIA — Women marines in the first sergeants' school at the navy yard here are learning how to take care of themselves with the old Japanese tricks of ju-jitsu.

The girls, many of them sports enthusiasts, use 10-minute recesses in learning chin and hip throws from Sgt. William F. Crystal, whose six-foot, four inch frame is a push-over for even the five foot girl.

But the instruction is not new to all the marines. Marine Cpl. Frances Gregory, Seattle, Wash., reported, "We had ju-jitsu at Camp Le-Jeune, New River, N. C., where some of us did our boot training." Cpl. Gregory added that the girls liked it and "felt we needed it for all of us stand guard duty sometime."

Jail Cook Worried

SALEM, Ore.—Sheriff A. C. Burk said he would have trouble paying the jail cook if Salem area residents continued to behave. A short time ago there were only five prisoners in the county jail, and he thought an all-time low had been reached. A few days after that, the total dropped to four, and the county can't afford to pay a cook on a per diem allowance for so few prisoners.

Potatoes should be stored in a dark, dry place where the temperature ranges between 40 and 60 degrees.

Buckeyes Seek First Conference Win Of Season Tomorrow

MEET ILLINOIS IN HOMECOMING GAME AT OHIO STADIUM

Coach Paul Brown's Boys Are 14-Point Pre-Game Favorites

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, Nov. 12.—Heartened by the return of ailing Big Bill Willis, the Ohio State Buckeyes went through their final warmup today to try for their first Western conference victory of the season in tomorrow's homecoming football game with Illinois here.

On the strength of the Bucks' smashing 46-6 victory over Pittsburg last Saturday, Ohio is a 14-point pre-game favorite.

However, Illinois can hardly be reckoned as a push-over after winning two games and losing two in the conference. The Illini are in fourth place in the standings.

Coach Paul Brown sent his team through a long defensive drill against passes last night, and in turn polished up the Buck aerial game.

Appleby Is Ill

He said Gordon Appleby, center and bulwark of the defense, might not be able to play after being ill in bed all week with tonsillitis.

Bill Hackett, regular guard who was out of last week's game with Pitt, will be in the starting lineup.

The Illini planned to work out this afternoon in Ohio stadium.

Officials forecast a crowd of from 40,000 to 50,000.

In other games involving Ohio teams Saturday, Miami visits Baldwin and Wallace, Case meets Bucknell at Lewisburg, Pa.; Wooster, a five-time loser, plays unbeaten Oberlin; Bowling Green, winner of five games in seven starts, meets Ohio Wesleyan, which has dropped six of its eight games, and West Virginia State plays at Wilberforce.

Altitude Makes Wrinkles Out of Vaughn's Curves

By ROBERT E. GEIGER

AP Features

DENVER—Adding his argument to the controversy of what causes a curve-ball, pitcher Roy Vaughn, the young curve-ball specialist of the Philadelphia Athletics, says altitude is a potent factor.

Vaughn probably is as well qualified to speak in the years-old baseball controversy as anyone.

An expert with a curve ball in the sea-level, major leagues, Vaughn is one of the few major league pitchers who has played a full season in mile high Denver in recent years.

He's in the Army now, a lieutenant in the air corps assigned to Buckley Field. This summer he kept in baseball training by playing three or four games a week with a semi-pro team.

"Scientists may claim there is no such thing as a curve ball but they never will convince me a ball doesn't curve," says Vaughn.

The Real McCoy

"Some scientists, you know, say the curve merely is an illusion; a trick that deceives the human eye. But I say it is the real McCoy; a ball actually curves."

"At a mile high, as we are in Denver, the air is rarer; there is less of it than at sea level."

"I favor the theory, as most professional pitchers do, that it is the spin that you place on a ball that causes it to curve."

"The spinning ball travels through the air and the curve occurs because of the resistance of the atmosphere."

"In Denver, with less air between the pitcher and the batter, the ball meets less air resistance and therefore it is harder to throw a curve."

"I say that there is a noticeable difference in the curve of a ball at sea level and at a mile high altitude. My curve ball hasn't as much curve on it here. On the other hand I find it easy to throw a fast, straight ball. I've developed a good fast ball, compared with what I had when I was with Philadelphia and with Toronto in the International League."

Air-Cooled Curves

"The difficulty in throwing a curve is greatest on a dry, hot afternoon. At night, with the air cooler and more moist, a fellow is in his best curve ball pitching form."

Vaughn played in several Denver army games against visiting big league players this summer and he said most of them commented about the effects of altitude on curves.

Dolph Camilli led the National league in strikeouts and in walks in 1939, fanning 107 times and drawing 110 bases on balls.

Salem High Band To Offer Salute To Flag Tonight

Feature At Last Gridiron Game to Present Large Fluorescent Flag

"A Salute to The Flag" will be the theme of the halftime performance of the Salem High band to night at Reilly field when 13 Senior musicians perform for the last football game on the occasion of the Salem-Lisbon gridiron clash.

Director Brautigam is presenting the band's third feature show, which will evolve around the presentation of the large fluorescent American flag for the first time this season. The flag was purchased for the group by the Salem Band Boosters club and it measures 10 by 15 feet.

Special music arranged for the exhibition will feature such patriotic tunes as, "It's a Grand Old Flag," "Stars and Stripes Forever," "The National Anthem," and the national anthem.

Serving in the 60-piece organization for the last football game will be 13 Seniors who have been with the band for four years. They are Jeanne Bricker, Barbara Butler, Jack Fineran, Ray Greenstein, Ken Grover, Bill Haney, Eugene Hively, Doris Holroyd, August J. Sproat, Mary Beth King, Mary Jane Sprato, Elizabeth Stewart and Dale Wykoff, who is president this year.

Bill Haney, head drum major, is finishing his second football season as leader of the marching organization. He also plays trumpet in the concert band.

UPSET FEVER HITS NORTHWESTERN

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 12.—Upset fever reached the epidemic stage at Northwestern today, as campus strategists boldly trifled with the idea that undefeated Notre Dame, the gridiron colossus, was ripe for a let-down after being kept in high-C pitch for Navy and Army.

This psychological scale, however, was not followed by Chicago odds-makers who pegged the Irish anywhere from 13 to 21 points better than the Wildcats. When the two rivals meet for the 23rd time tomorrow, in a series which started in 1899, a capacity crowd of some 48,500 spectators is expected to pack Dyche stadium.

Only three times have the wildcats beaten the Irish, but the meetings, for the most part, have been fairly close.

Skipping across the chalklines... Another whirl of the milk bottle in presenting tomorrow's scores today.

Notre Dame 33, Northwestern 12—figuring that the Irish are near perfect all the way around—and that means in the pass-defense department.

Buckeyes On The Go

Ohio State 20, Illinois 13—the Buckeyes are on the go after shelving Pittsburgh, but this one is rather tough to pick for Coach Ray.

Elit reports he is planning a "long-passing game" featuring Greenwood, Bassey, McGovern and Bray.

Michigan 40, Wisconsin 0—the Wolverines are aiming to grab 51 points in their last two games and thus be ranked as the highest scoring team turned out by Fritz Crisler in his six years at Michigan.

Minnesota 14, Iowa 7—neither looks as if it might pay some of our pro athletes to investigate this good neighbor business—especially since they say that, due to Mexico City's high altitude, curve balls become mere wrinkles and a 400-foot hit is nothing unusual.

come to think of it, while they're talking about bringing California cities into the big leagues after the war, why not Mexico City, too?

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Billy Kelly, Buffalo Courier-Express: "The idea that a man is able to play baseball or football but can't pass his draft board physical has been the subject of considerable scoffing. But records show that even in normal times many ballplayers have many ills. Bellies are so common in baseball that it is almost an occupational shortcoming. In fact, bellies on the bench are the chief cause of headaches among managers and in the front of service."

By ORLO ROBERTSON

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Heading into the home stretch with a season's record of 181 victories, 42 setbacks and eight ties we give you the following winners (we hope) on tomorrow's football program:

North Carolina-Penn.—We can't see the Tarheels emerging victorious.

Nine District Schools Close Season With Weekend Games

Nine district football squads will be closing their 1943 seasons this weekend as the Salem Quakers do battle against the Lisbon Blue Devils at Reilly field in a contest that will ring down the curtain for both schools this year.

East Palestine, Columbiana, Leetonia, Salem, Lisbon, Carrollton, Struthers, Sebring, and Boardman will finish their schedules this weekend as Alliance, Wellsville, East Liverpool, and Sciencville battle in their next-to-last fray.

The Salem-Lisbon battle will begin at 7:45 tonight and the Quakers are heavy choices to rebound from their defeat at East Liverpool last week with an impressive win over the Lisbon crew.

Columbiana At Palestine

At East Palestine a real battle is brewing as the Bulldogs take on the Columbiana Clippers in a traditional rivalry that has extra meaning this season. These teams are knotted in a four-way tie for second place honors in the Tri-County League and the winner of the battle will claim second rank in the league along with the winner of the Minerva-Louisville clash.

East Palestine is given a slight edge over the Clippers but both teams are so "keyed up" that pregame ratings are practically valueless.

Wellsville entertains Rochester, Pa. under the lights at Nicholson field tonight and will be trying to add another victory to their record before the all-important Liverpool game on Thanksgiving Day. The Bengals have gained considerable strength now that Gregg Arraugh, their star ball carrier, is back in the lineup.

East Liverpool is expecting an easy job as they play host to Sciencville at Patterson field tonight. The Sciencville squad hasn't won a game and lost to the Wellsville Bengals 33 to 0.

Saturday afternoon sees the Sebring Trojans walking into another tough battle. Boardman, undefeated and untied for the second season, will entertain Sebring and needs only this win to clinch their perfect season. The Boardman squad, coached by "Rib" Allen, formerly of Salem, has already copped the Tri-County league title but can add another league victory by taking the Trojans, who are in last place with Lisbon.

Carrollton At Leetonia

Coach J. L. McBride's Leetonia team will close a successful year with a battle with Carrollton Saturday afternoon in Leetonia. McBride's squad will be on the rebound from an upset handed them last week by Austintown Fitch. Carrollton has had a fairly good season and will give the Leetonians something to ponder over.

Struthers meets powerful Youngstown East at the South field Saturday afternoon to conclude one of the most disastrous seasons the "Big Red" has ever experienced. East has practically copped the city championship this year with only one battle standing in their way. Struthers has won only one game in seven and will be the underdog.

LEAVES FROM A WAR CORRESPONDENT'S NOTEBOOK

by Hal Boyle

A FIGHTER-TRAINER BASE IN NORTH AFRICA, Nov. 12—Have you heard story of the three one-eyed bandits? Well, they're in the army now—three mechanical Robin Hoods who still rob everybody who comes their way, but the dough goes back to the guys in uniform.

The "bandits" are three slot machines which back in 1942, were employed in the pockets of a group of soldiers in Waycross, Ga., who were being conditioned before going overseas as part of the 12th Air Force Service command.

There were so many slot machines in the fun spots of Waycross the good citizens decided they had become a threat to the morals of their "colder" guests. So a group petitioned the sheriff to step in and the machines were confiscated and taken out of circulation.

But shortly afterward the sheriff received a visitor—an army officer. His request was brief, but apparently eloquent, for a few days later one dime and two nickel slot machines were being landed in business in the post exchange at the nearby army base.

Soldiers Fund Benefits
Instead of lining the pockets of night club owners, however, the profits went into a special fund for the soldiers. Within a short time the machines had purchased a washing machine, an electric iron and many other conveniences not considered basic army equipment.

Then the men were sent overseas to North Africa. Along with them went the three slot machines, packed in innocent-looking crates. For weeks they provided entertainment for the troops and profits for the organizational fund, but when the Germans made their break through at Kasserine Pass the service command unit was called upon to move hurriedly and the coin grabbers were left behind with another outfit.

Now they have turned up in the officers' club of a unit training fighter pilots.

Miss officer of the unit is Lieut. James Cooper of Birmingham, Ala., who once was a high school football star and who surrounds pilots in his outfit with one of the most ornate clubs in the North African theater.

The three hard-working little slot machines have paid for it all—the cherry wood bar, the handsome brown leather chairs, deep-piled hush-hush rugs and even the card table. They also have eliminated the need of mess fees for the officers and help buy many little "extras" for the enlisted men.

The "take" from the three machines was approximately $150 a day and the monthly net is close to $5,000. All of it goes for those little extras that make the difference between satisfied and "very satisfied" soldiers.

Explains Skill
"Shucks," said Miss Sgt. Andrew Ahlstrom of Long Lake, Mich. "We figure our pilots will get so mad playing them they'll gladly go out and shoot Germans."

Three men were playing the machines at the moment. Lieut. Col. Charles Jones of Jackson, Miss., had just drawn two cherries and a lemon, which were worth 30 cents. "My good fortune," he said, "is attributable to skill—specifically to the use of a highly developed right shoulder nudge."

At the middle machine Major Jean Bellaire, commandant of some French troops stationed nearby was tossing slugs into the slot and grimacing with mock seriousness each time he failed to get a return on his investment.

"Pas Bon!" he exclaimed, "American Arab!"
At the third machine Capt. Herb Myers watched intently as the cylinders spun. Finally he threw up his hands in despair.
"That makes $5 that blasted ma-

LOSES GAS, RATION JOB FOR VIOLATIONS

CLEVELAND, Nov. 12—John E. Boudier of Canton lost his gasoline ration for a year and resigned a ration board post after admitting illegal possession of gasoline coupons and driving at excessive speed. C. A. Rogers, hearing officer for the Office of Price Administration, announced today.

Rogers said he ordered Boudier's A and C rations revoked after a hearing in which OPA enforcement Attorney N. F. Jacobs charged the member of the gasoline panel of Canton Ration Board 76-2 was arrested by the highway patrol for driving 62 miles an hour near Navarre, O., and had in his possession 56 C coupons which had not been issued to him.

Boudier resigned at the request of OPA officials, Rogers added.
